65908. Provide a safe and comfortable environment for learning. Care about students' overall well-being, not only academic aspects. Very patient and encouraging. Enjoyed every class.

65906. The course, despite moving very quickly was well laid out. However, it felt like a lot of work out of class, in addition to the many class periods, for 4 credits

65912. Very good class, I learned a lot from the class, one of my favorite classes ever.

65910. the syllabus should be more concrete

65913. Loved the course. Taking the next sequence next semester!

65907. Dr. Sieffert is very approachable and attempts to ensure her students are absorbing the material.

(2) Please comment on the above instructor questions, or any other aspect of the instructor's teaching.

65906. Very good as a teacher. Urged us to use french, but explained in English when necessary. A nice balance of the two. Always available to help

65912. Very good teacher, she was able to teach the concepts very easily, and I am a lot more confident in my French Language capabilities

65909. Professor Sieffert conducted the course in a way that was educational, constructive, entertaining, and enriching.

65913. The instructor was amazing! The friendliness helped instill an atmosphere conducive to me being confident in speaking French in class and that helped a lot.

65903. The class often got dragged into tangential conversations in English by students, but I very much appreciate that Dr. Sieffert did her best to bring us back to the subject matter most of the time while still welcoming questions from students.

65904. The instructor was the greatest aspect of this course, and she displayed enthusiasm and a caring attitude for both the materials and her students. The most engaging, patient, and caring instructor that I have had in my time at Cornell.

65911. The instructor actively ensured that every student participated in class in a way that allowed us to make noticeable progress each class. She has been one of my favorite instructors I have had at Cornell given the way that she genuinely cares about the successes of her students both in and outside of the classroom.
